Superstition has it that Seven is a lucky number; therefore, wouldn't the number 14 be twice as lucky? It certainly has been for the Ferris State Swimming Team. They set 14 records this year.

"The people we counted on to be our top performers in leadership roles were a bit stronger this year than last year and we had better depth," said Rick Kowalkoski, coach of the Ferris Swimming Team.

Dan Whalen, a pre-engineering sophomore, was one of those outstanding performers who set all diving records on the team this year.

Pete Milostan, a data processing major, also set records in the 50 and 100 free style events.

"I think we have a good team. The guys on the team show a lot of class," said Kowalkoski.

"Swimming meets are very exciting to watch. I think that anyone who walks away from a swim meet walks away thrilled," added Kowalkoski.

Winning isn't always everything, being able to just participate and become a part of such a controvert team like Ferris' swimming team is a great opportunity.

"We had a 9-5 record, with the strongest schedule we saw, probably the most difficult one," said Kowalkoski.

Whoever said that freshmen are slow and hard to coach was wrong. Tim Cahill, a pre-dentistry major, proved that when he set records in both of the breast stroke events this year.

"Our good athletes will be back and hopefully the incoming freshmen will be as good," said Kowalkoski.

Parting waves, Rick Murt practices the butterfly stroke. The electric power technology major helped Ferris post a 9-5 season record.

Pre-engineering sophomore Dan Whalen sharpens his record-breaking diving form. Whalen set all FSC's diving records this year.
