

Michigan Health Sciences Libraries Association
2019 Annual Conference

October 2-4, 2019

Lansing, MI

Welcome to MHSLA 2019!

I love this conference. It is something I look forward to every year. The settings are always scenic, the CE's are always informative, the Special Events are always fun, and best of all, I get to reconnect with colleagues I haven't seen since the last conference. How apropos that the theme for this year is Connect at the Capital!

The planning committees (Local Arrangements and Education) for this year have done an outstanding job of putting this conference together. I had a difficult time trying to decide which CEs I was going to attend; I wanted to attend them all. Shannon Jones is a national leader on diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) in libraries, and she will be presenting our keynote as well as moderating the panel discussion Beyond Cultural Competence: Diversity in Library and Health Sciences on Friday. I've been to several professional development sessions over the last three years on DEI, from a variety of presenters, and I have always come away with new ideas and knowledge. The vendor and exhibits folks did a great job liaising with our vendors. Please stop by the exhibits and say hello and thank you to the vendors during our vendor engagement time. This year the Special Event will be held at the R.E. Olds Transportation Museum. As you probably guessed the museum was named after Ransom E. Olds, founder of Oldsmobile. It is listed on Trip Advisor as the #4 of 69 things to do in Lansing, and is rated one of the ten best automobile museums in the U.S. by Car Collector Magazine.

The MHSLA / MiALA Partnership Task Force is holding a special panel on Thursday afternoon to present to the membership the work this group has done so far and the discussions that have taken place regarding MHSLA conferences after 2020. Unfortunately, we can't maintain the status quo so we need to adapt to the changes we are seeing as an organization. This could be a huge change in the way we do business. Please attend and voice any concerns or suggestions you may have. MHSLA leadership wants to hear from you.

Thank you, Local Arrangements and Education Committees. Take heart, you can soon throw yourself onto your couches and heave a big sigh of relief!

Thank you for attending and have a great conference!

Continuing Education

On Beyond Searching: Librarians' Roles in Resident Research

Location: Capitol III

Instructors: Dr. Bill Corser & Dr. Sam Wisniewski, Statewide Campus System, College of Osteopathic Medicine, Michigan State University

Want to get an overview of key topics for librarians who may help residents with their research? Both DO and MD residents are facing increasing pressure to do research, so medical and health sciences librarians are likely to see more requests for help in this area. This course is ideal for librarians who wish to understand the entire life cycle of a resident's research project.

Continuing Education

Wake Up To Mindfulness

Location: Capitol IV

Instructor: April Kaiserlian, LMSW, Grand Rapids Center for Mindfulness

Wake up to mindfulness! Wake up to life! You are given this one, precious life. It will be filled with moments of joy and struggle as well as moments that are ordinary and quiet. Mindfulness is a simple, yet powerful practice that can help you cultivate a more calm, clear and compassionate approach to each moment of life. This presentation will offer an introduction to the practice of mindfulness, the research behind it as well as formal and informal practices you can use at work and home.

Continuing Education

Introduction to Licensing Electronic Resources

Location: Capitol III

Instructor: Stephanie Davis, MBA, MS, Manager of Group Purchasing, Midwest Collaborative for Library Services

This basic workshop is designed for library staff who are new to negotiating licenses for electronic resources. This workshop would also be beneficial to library staff who do not negotiate with vendors, but who do work with electronic resources and/or ERM systems and need to understand license terms. The workshop will address the basic concepts of contract law (licenses as contracts) and offer a hands-on look at the components of a standard licensing agreement. [Note: this is an introductory workshop and is not geared toward experienced staff who have already negotiated licenses.]

Continuing Education

True North: Finding Free Evidence-Based Public Health Resources

Location: Capitol IV

Instructor: Cecilia Vernes, MS-LIS, Lamar Soutter Library: University of Massachusetts Medical School

This course will cover how to go about strategizing searching for freely available public health resources and how best to evaluate them for bias and evidence quality. The participants will complete prework. For part of the session the instruction will focus on the public health topics of PFA's in water contamination, which was identified by the conference education committee as one of the top three public health issues in the state of Michigan. The participants will be asked to share some of their prework findings and may do some group work to focus collaboration and idea-sharing.

Panel Discussion

Digital Knowledge Infrastructure: A Conversation About Current Challenges and Future Trends

Location: Capitol II

Moderated by Abe Wheeler, MLIS, AHIP, Michigan State University Libraries

Getting good quality evidence-based scientific information to our patrons necessitates collaboration and forward thinking. Libraries work with internal structures, organizational administrations, and vendors to quickly and effectively connect our users with the information they need in the format they require it. This panel will be a broad discussion about the future trends and current challenges in digital knowledge infrastructure broadly - as it impacts information systems, educational paradigms, our organizations, our patrons, and the vendors we work with to provide information.

Panelists:

- Eric Branger, Director of Product Strategy, Wolters Kluwer
- Barbara Platts, MLIS, Hospital Librarian, Munson Healthcare
- Michael Shields, BS, Digital Strategist, Western Michigan University Homer Stryker M.D. School of Medicine
- Ranti Junus, MLIS, Electronic Resources & Systems Librarian, Michigan State University Libraries

2:30 pm – 3:30 pm

Special Presentation

MHSLA/MiALA Partnership Task Force

Location: Capitol II

This session will highlight the activities to date of the 8-member MHSLA/MiALA Partnership Task Force, formed in 2019. The task force is investigating the potential for professional collaboration between the Michigan Health Sciences Libraries Association (MHSLA) and the Michigan Academic Library Association (MiALA). This initiative emerged as a result of analyzing the downward trends in MHSLA membership numbers, the conference participation rates, and projected financial challenges of continuing to offer conference experiences as we have done in the past. Affiliating with another professional organization with similar interests may be beneficial to both groups by providing opportunities for collaboration and educational development. We invite attendees to hear about the taskforce, our accomplishments and ideas to date, and to give their feedback on potential changes to conference planning and programming.

Special Event

Location: R.E. Olds Transportation Museum

Sponsored by Michigan Academic Libraries Association

Join us for dinner, opportunities to view the R.E. Olds Transportation Museum, and take part in a scavenger hunt with fun prizes.

The R.E. Olds Museum was incorporated in 1977 on the incentive of a study task force of the Greater Lansing Chamber of Commerce. After site selection and renovation, the Museum opened to the public on May 18, 1981 at its present location.

The Museum is a nonprofit, educational organization governed by a Board of Trustees. It is dedicated to Ransom Eli Olds, inventor, entrepreneur, and financier, and one of Lansing's most notable automotive leaders. He created the principle of the assembly line in the automobile industry and founded two local automobile companies: Olds Motor Works (1897) and REO Motor Car Company (1904).

As the Museum has grown in interpretation of its mission, and to more accurately promote Lansing area's many contributions in transportation, the word "Transportation" was added to the Museum's name in 1987.

The Museum exhibits a significant collection of automobiles, engines, and other materials significant to the transportation history of Lansing, the region, the state, and the nation. The R.E. Olds Transportation Museum and the Bates and Edmonds Engine Company offices are resources within the Lansing Stewardship Community of Motor-Cities-National Heritage Area, a cultural heritage area and affiliate of the National Parks Service.

The Museum purchased its own building, where it has always been located, from the City of Lansing in February of 2018 for $2.

Keynote Address

Disrupting the Narrative: Cultivating an Inclusive Library Environment for All the Lives We Touch

Location: Capitol I

Shannon Jones, MLS, Med, AHIP

Director of Libraries, Medical University of South Carolina Libraries

The Michigan Health Sciences Libraries Association is excited to host Shannon Jones (MLIS, MEd, FMLA, AHIP) as our keynote speaker for the 2019 conference. Ms. Jones is the Director of the Medical University of South Carolina Library, and she is a national leader on diversity, equity, and inclusion in libraries. She is an editor on the forthcoming Medical Libraries Association publication Diversity and Inclusion in Libraries: A Call To Action and Strategies For Success. She has presented on a variety of topics, including delivering the continuing education course "Implicit Bias Training for Information Professionals," at MLA 19, and recently was part of a panel at ALA Annual, "The Sense of Self: How Identity Informs Academic Librarianship.” We are excited to have her as both a presenter and a moderator of the panel “Beyond Cultural Competence: Diversity in Library and Health Sciences.”

Beyond Cultural Competence: Diversity in Library and Health Sciences

Location: Capitol I

Moderated by Shannon Jones, MLIS, Med, AHIP (The Medical University of South Carolina Libraries & Conference Keynote Speaker)

The exclusion (whether purposeful or not) of diverse candidate and populations affects every level of health research, practice, and librarianship, from the demographics of intake in library and medical schools to the selection of participants for drug trials and the design of health-related apps. This panel will discuss some of the ways that a lack of diversity impacts our work as librarians and the work of the clinicians and researchers that we serve, as well as some steps that institutions are taking to address existing imbalances in health sciences related fields.

Panelists:

- Dr. Renee Canady, Assistant Professor, Masters of Public Health Program, Michigan State University
- Dr. Elahe Crockett, Program Director of REPID Program, Michigan State University
- Dr. stef shuster, Assistant Professor, Sociology, Michigan State University
- Sharon Williams, Retired Librarian, Hurley Medical Center (Flint)
