

For Immediate Release
March 28, 2005

Contact Bill Taylor, Asst. Director, News Services
taylorb@ferris.edu, (231) 591-2065 or 591-5604

Ferris adds speaker to Forensic Science Lecture Series

BIG RAPIDS – Dustin Anderson, a specialist with the Kent County Sheriff’s Department, has been added to Ferris State University’s Forensic Science Lecture Series.

Anderson will discuss his job in forensics and how students can prepare for similar careers on Tuesday, April 5, at 11 a.m. in Science Building, Room 120.

Other remaining speakers in the series, which covers topics made popular by television’s “CSI” shows, are:

John Trestrail, managing director of the DeVos Children’s Hospital Regional Poison Center in Grand Rapids, “Forensic Toxicology,” April 7 at 6 p.m. in Instructional Resource Center (IRC), Auditorium 2.

Heather Gill-Robinson, instructor and doctoral candidate at the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg, “Forensic Anthropology/Archaeology,” April 12 at 6 p.m. in IRC-2, and “My life as a CSI,” April 14 at 11 a.m. in Science-120.

The lectures, sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences’ biology department, are free and open to the public.