Narrative

The meeting was called to order at 10:00

The Minutes of the January 11, 2011 were approved without objection.

Regarding discussion of assessment tools, Dean Hill offered to provide lists of students completing the IDEA form to instructors before grades close at the end of the semester. There is no mechanism for making names available to instructors of students completing online SAI forms before grades close.

II.	Open Forum: the Senate offered "get well wishes" to Dave Winger.
III.	Reports
	A.	President Haneline had no report at this time.
	B.	Vice President Berghoef reported that the Student Government appreciates members of the Senate Executive Committee attending their meetings. He asked Senators to encourage students to consider running for election to the Student Government. He reported that he had met with co-chairs Heaphy and Skrocki to discuss the results of the ad hoc Task Force on Senate Committees in preparation for their report later at this meeting.
	C.	Secretary Alspach added to VP Berghoef's observation that Student Government meetings are open to the public and she encouraged Senators to attend and listen to the concerns and activities of the student body. She reminded Senators visiting Student Government that it is a courtesy to speak to the SG President before the meeting to request time to make any announcement during the Hearing of the Public period at the beginning of the meeting (similar to our Open Forum).

IV.	Committee Reports
	A.	Sandy Balkema reported on preparations for the Higher Learning Commission visit. She showed Senators a final printed copy of the report and encouraged them to examine the pdf version posted on the HLC link on the Ferris website, with a special eye to any references to Academic Senate.
		She announced that the names of the visiting team had not been finalized, but the team is beginning to schedule their visit. She reminded Senators that there will be a Senate meeting on April 19 with several members of the team. She said that the HLC steering committee is compiling a list of the kinds of questions visiting teams typically ask so that we can be prepared to respond appropriately.
		She reported that the communications campaign is gearing up and pointed our attention to the "potty posters" highlighting various aspects of the Mission and Core Values and to the postings on MyFSU.
	B.	Leonard Johnson reported the work of the University Curriculum Committee in February, including three proposals on the agenda for today, and answered questions.
		There was discussion about the proposed Philosophy course in Applied Ethics.
		Johnson noted that the UCC had received information about 11 new experimental courses. There was discussion about the use of the experimental x90 number to pre-test the viability of new courses. Provost Erickson noted that he depended on faculty reviews to assure the integrity of these experimental courses, but approval of additions to the curriculum would be based on resource availability as well.
	C.	Sens. Heaphy and Skrocki reported for the Task Force reviewing Senate Committees.
		Sen. Skrocki reviewed the charge given to the ad hoc committee and the process the committee had followed to meet their charge. She acknowledged the members of the committee: David Marion (COB), George Nagel (AS), Roger Daugherty (AHS), Michelle Johnston (AA) and ex-officio Matt Pinter (COB).
		Sen. Heaphy explained the rubric the committee used to assess Senate committees, showed examples of committee structures within the University and the Academic Senate and previewed the recommendations that would be addressed in New Business.
		President Haneline thanked the committee for their diligence.
	D.	Don Flickinger reported for the General Education Task Force.
		The Task Force will hold two Town Hall meetings: March 21 and March 22, to make final inputs to the Outcomes for General Education. The goal is to ask for Senate support at the April 5 meeting.
		He encouraged Senate participation in the Town Hall process and welcomed feedback at heckf@ferris.edu .
		Pres. Haneline reminded Senators that the proposed Outcomes will be open for general discussion, but not "wordsmithing" on the floor of the Senate. During the next year, the GETF will address how students can meet the Outcomes through multiple activities, not just coursework.
		There was general discussion of the Outcomes. Of special concern was that General Education be viewed as the providence of the entire University, not any specific area.
	E.	Danielle Balmer reported from Student Government. She introduced Danielle Shin from Allied Health Sciences who was observing the Academic Senate meeting.
		She announced the 10 th annual WILL conference on the theme "Breaking Barriers" will be held on March 15 at the Holiday Inn, in collaboration with You Beautiful Black Woman (YBBW). This conference includes keynote speakers from faculty, staff and alumni as well as break-out discussion sessions.

		She reminded Senators that April 9 is the Big Event. Student applications to participate are due March 19. She noted that student volunteers do not have to be members of a Recognized Student Organization to participate.
		She reported that Ferris SG members had attended the state Student Associations of Michigan (SAM) conference. There are plans to bus Ferris students to Lansing on March 24 to show concern about plans to cut state funding to higher education.
	F.	Sen. Sun, chair of the Senate Elections Committee, reported that nominations for Academic Senate are due Friday. He expressed concern that some colleges lacked sufficient candidates for the open positions available, and encouraged Senators to recruit.
	G.	Sen. Cook and John Urbanik, Chief Technology Officer, reported from the EMAT (E-Learning Management Advisory Team). They noted that there had been low attendance at focus group sessions held by this committee in February. Sen. Cook asked to see hands of Senators engaged in fully online or blended course instruction. More than half of the Senators reported.
		Dean Nicol facilitated a brief focus group with the Academic Senate. Several issues were raised.
		While online instruction provides opportunity for some Ferris students to complete their degrees, there is concern about course “caps” and faculty preparation for effective teaching in the boundary-less class environment. A key issue is whether faculty can choose to teach online or are assigned to these classes.
		Urbanik sought guidance about how to provide effective technology support for online instruction. Several issues were raised about availability of technical support and reliability of hardware and software.
V.	Old Business
	A.	Jim Nystrom, chair of the Senate Academic Policy and Standards Committee, proposed that the Senate endorse the Academic Affairs Policy Letter dated February 2010, “Student Complaint Policy”, with recommended changes and after identified concerns are addressed. After lengthy discussion, the Question was called and passed with one dissenting voice (Nagel, Dakkuri). The motion to endorse passed (Dakkuri, Jewett).
		Pres. Haneline answered the question about whether faculty members have a complaint policy by referring the Senator to the “Employee Complaint Policy” managed by the Ferris Faculty Association.
VI.	New Business
	A.	The Senate voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of the University Curriculum Committee revise the Associate Degree in Dental Hygiene . (Alspach, Daugherty)
	B.	After discussion, the Senate voted to close the Associate Degree in Ornamental Horticulture Technology. (Abbasabadi, Nagel)
	C.	With several abstentions, the Senate voted to approve an Undergraduate Project Management Certificate. (Heaphy, Nagel)
		In the interest of time, Pres. Haneline moved consideration of the Academic Program Review Council recommendations to the April meeting.
VII.	Announcements
	A.	Provost Erickson reported on the process and progress of the Academic Core Review Team. He thanked Pres. Haneline for agreeing to co-lead the committee with Brian Craig, welcomed new member Kim Wilbur and promised that Marilyn Beamish would be posting minutes. He promised that the list of “rumors” would be forthcoming. He shared his experience meeting with a grants consultant, who complimented the work being accomplished at Ferris “in spite of our best efforts to support people doing so.” He encouraged faculty to continue to pursue grants and promised to become more intentional in supporting these pursuits.

VII. Open Forum
	A.	Sen. Nagel reiterated the call for the General Education Task Force to encourage interdisciplinary and co-curricular opportunities to meet the Outcomes presented.
	B.	Sen. Dakkuri requested that the Senate Executive Committee discuss inviting Bob Loesch to attend meetings to consult on parliamentary issues.
	C.	Leonard Johnson invited Senators to attend the SPARC (Strategic Planning and Resource Council) meeting on March 15 from 3:00 to 5:00 pm in West Campus Community Center.
	D.	Sen. Marion encouraged Senators to reply to the EMAT survey.
The meeting was adjourned at 11:45. (Heaphy, Abbasabadi)

COMMISSION STATEMENT ON ASSESSMENT OF STUDENT LEARNING

By adopting a formal position statement for the Commission, the Board of Trustees explains the premises on which it creates certain policies. Position statements, therefore, amplify the intent of policies and are not policies in and of themselves. Within the position statement, the Board points to relevant policies. Implementation of those policies, therefore, should honor the fundamental intent established by the Board in its formal position statement.

The Commission posited in October 1989 that assessment of student academic achievement is an essential component of every organization's effort to evaluate overall effectiveness. The experience of the past fourteen years has demonstrated that it is key to improving student learning. Assessment of student academic achievement is fundamental for all organizations that place student learning at the center of their educational endeavors.

Among the public's many expectations of higher education, the most basic is that students will learn, and in particular that they will learn what they need to know to attain personal success and fulfill their public responsibilities in the Twenty-first Century. The focus has moved from considering resources as primary evidence of the quality of education to expecting documentation of student learning. An organization's focus on achieved student learning is critical not only to promoting and improving effective curricular and cocurricular learning experiences and to providing evidence of the quality of educational experiences and programs, but also to enhancing the public's perception of the value of higher education.

The Commission appreciates that effective assessment can take a variety of forms and involve a variety of processes. However, faculty members, with meaningful input from students and strong support from the administration and governing board, should have the fundamental role in developing and sustaining systematic assessment of student learning. Their assessment strategy should be informed by the organization's mission and include explicit public statements regarding the knowledge, skills, and competencies students should possess as a result of completing course and program requirements; it also should document the values, attitudes, and behaviors faculty expect students to have developed. Moreover, while strong assessment should provide data that satisfy any externally mandated accountability requirements, its effectiveness in improving student learning relies on its integration into the organization's processes for program review, departmental and organization planning, and unit and organizational budgeting.

An organization's commitment to and capacity for effective assessment of student learning will figure more prominently than ever in the accreditation relationship established between the Commission and that organization. The Criteria for Accreditation, the Core Components, and the Examples of Evidence adopted by the Commission in 2003 forge important new links between assessment of student learning and accreditation. More than just an effective strategy for accountability or an effective management process for curriculum improvement, assessment of student achievement is essential for each higher learning organization that values its effect on the learning of its students. Therefore, an organization committed to understanding and improving the learning opportunities and environments it provides students will be able to document the relationship between assessment of and improvement in student learning.

STUDENT LEARNING, ASSESSMENT, AND ACCREDITATION

Among the public's many expectations of higher education, the most basic is that students will learn, and in particular that they will learn what they need to know to attain personal success and fulfill their public responsibilities in a global and diverse society. Student learning is central to all higher education organizations; therefore, these organizations define educational quality--one of their core purposes--by how well they achieve their declared mission relative to student learning. A focus on achieved student learning is critical not only to a higher education organization's ability to promote and improve curricular and co-curricular learning experiences and to provide evidence of the quality of educational experiences and programs, but also to fulfill the most basic public expectations and needs of higher education.

In October 1989, the Commission first posited that assessment of student learning is an essential component of every organization's effort to evaluate overall organizational effectiveness. In February 2003, The Higher Learning Commission adopted a newly revised position statement on assessment of student learning (see Section 3.4-2 of the Handbook of Accreditation, Third Edition) to reaffirm and strengthen this position. Through the Criteria for Accreditation and multiple Core Components, the Commission makes clear the centrality of student learning to effective higher education organizations and extends and deepens its commitment to and expectations for assessment. Indeed, the Commission asserts that assessment is more than a response to demands for accountability, more than a means for curricular improvement. Effective assessment is best understood as a strategy for understanding, confirming, and improving student learning.

Fundamental Questions for Conversations on Student Learning

Six fundamental questions serve as prompts for conversations about student learning and the role of assessment in affirming and improving that learning:

- 1. How are your stated student learning outcomes appropriate to your mission, programs, degrees, and students?
- 2. What evidence do you have that students achieve your stated learning outcomes?
- 3. In what ways do you analyze and use evidence of student learning?
- 4. How do you ensure shared responsibility for student learning and for assessment of student learning?
- 5. How do you evaluate and improve the effectiveness of your efforts to assess and improve student learning?
- 6. In what ways do you inform the public and other stakeholders about what students are learning---and how well?

In using these questions, an organization should ground its conversations in its distinct mission, context, commitments, goals and intended outcomes for student learning. In addition to informing ongoing improvement in student learning, these conversations will assist organizations and peer reviewers in discerning evidence for the Criteria and Core Components.

The fundamental questions and the conversations they prompt are intended to support a strategy of inquiry into student learning. Further, the questions are intended to support this strategy of inquiry, built on principles of good practice, as a participative and iterative process that:

- Provides information regarding student learning,
- Engages stakeholders in analyzing and using information on student learning to confirm and improve teaching and learning,
- Produces evidence that confirms achievement of intended student learning outcomes, and
- Guides broader educational and organizational improvement.

In other words, organizations assess student learning in meaningful, useful, and workable ways to evaluate how they are achieving their commitments and to act on the results in ways that advance student learning and improve educational quality. Effective assessment of student learning is a matter of commitment, not a matter of compliance.

Evaluating the Organization's Efforts to Assess and Improve Student Learning

The centrality of student learning and the fundamental nature of assessment as a strategy for understanding and improving that learning are embedded directly into the Criteria and Core Components. Thus, peer reviewers seeking evidence for the Criteria and Core Components will discern evidence of the commitment to student learning and the meaningful use of assessment to confirm and improve student learning. Neither the Criteria nor Core Components prescribe specific methods for assessing and improving student learning. It is inevitable and desirable that diverse organizations exhibit a wide variety of approaches and embed assessment of student learning in a variety of institutional forms and processes. Thus, the Commission and its peer reviewers will not approach the review with expectations for specific ways in which assessment efforts are structured and implemented, but rather with a focus on student learning and the use of assessment to confirm and improve that learning within the context and mission of the organization.

To remain focused on student learning and assessment as a strategy for confirming and improving that learning, peer reviewers may use the fundamental questions as prompts to engage faculty, staff, students, and administrators in conversations about the organization's (a) commitment to improving student learning and educational quality; (b) sustained effort to collect, analyze, and use data and information on student learning; (c) evidence that students have achieved the learning intended; (d) shared responsibility for student learning and assessment of student learning; and (e) successes and challenges in improving student learning and educational quality through assessment. These conversations will assist peer reviewers in understanding the organization's commitment to student learning and approaches to assessment of that learning within the organization's context and mission. Further, the conversation will assist in discerning areas for consultation and in identifying and validating evidence related to the Criteria and Core Components. Peer reviewers will base their accreditation-related judgments and recommendations on this evidence as it relates to the Criteria and Core Components.

Finally, the Commission realizes that assessment of student learning is an ongoing, dynamic process that requires substantial time; that is often marked by fits and starts; and that takes long-term commitment and leadership. It is reasonable for organizations to use different approaches and timetables in implementing their assessment of student learning efforts. Nevertheless, the Commission expects that each organization can demonstrate a sustained effort to implement assessment processes that are workable, reasonable, meaningful, and useful in confirming and improving student learning and in assuring and advancing broader educational and organizational quality.

University-Wide Student Learning Outcomes

Ferris State University

Final Draft for 4/5/11 Academic Senate Meeting

Through experiences inside and outside the classroom, Ferris State University's general education program challenges students to become successful citizens of a diverse and globalized world. Success in a rapidly changing world requires the ability to adapt and apply knowledge and skills from multiple areas to creatively address new and challenging situations. This philosophy is especially appropriate in a world of increasingly complex connections and interactions between world cultures that daily become more inextricably linked in the social, political, economic and scientific issues they face.

Knowledge of Human Cultures and the Natural World

Focused by engagement with big questions, both contemporary and enduring

Graduates of Ferris State University should know:

... how all cultures, past or present, are fundamentally similar to each other, and why it is important to understand cultural differences. People of all cultures work and play, laugh and cry, have families and friends. They have histories and traditions that shape who they are as individuals and societies. They have religions and philosophies that bring meaning to the world in which they live. They express themselves through language and through the works they create of music, art and literature. These things may differ in significant ways from culture to culture, but rather than barriers that divide and separate, the differences should be understood as variations on the theme of human experience. Recognizing the similarities and understanding the differences between peoples are critical for success in a diverse and globalized world.

...how their lives are shaped by the society and place in which they live. Each of us lives in a society that includes political, legal, economic, educational, health care and other social institutions and systems. These social systems, together with our interpersonal relationships, daily influence who we are and how we interact with others. Furthermore, the natural environment of the place a people live exerts a powerful influence on the nature of their society and relationships with each other. We must know how these things influence us as individuals in order to fully understand who we are and how we fit into the larger world we are a part of.

... how scientists come to an understanding of the natural world and why a scientific understanding of the natural world is important. We live in a time of general concern regarding the dangers of global climate change, pandemic diseases, resource depletion, environmental degradation and other hazards yet undiscovered. Scientific investigation is essential to finding creative and sustainable solutions to these problems. As citizens required to make personal and political decisions about scientific issues, we need to both comprehend the scientific process and critically evaluate proposed solutions.

...how technology shapes their world. The modern world is characterized by technologies that influence our lives in myriad ways. Because of this dependence on technology, we need to understand the nature of technological systems and practices, how they interrelate with each other and how they impact our lives at many levels.

Intellectual and Practical Skills

Practiced extensively, across the curriculum, in the context of progressively more challenging problems, projects, and standards for performance

Graduates of Ferris State University should be able to:

...identify, access, and use information effectively. Whether information comes from traditional sources or emerging technologies, the knowledge and ability to gather and use it in the most effective way for a given purpose is fundamental to both personal growth and professional success.

...critically evaluate information using appropriate reasoning skills. Knowledge is growing exponentially. A successful citizen must have the ability to evaluate the validity and usefulness of this information.

...interpret and use quantitative information together with the qualitative to understand and effectively solve real-life problems. Much of the information we receive is numerical in nature and represents a form of communication that transcends cultural boundaries. Graduates need the ability to effectively use this quantitative together with qualitative information to solve real-life problems.

...think and act creatively in problem solving. Solutions to today's problems require thinking that is characterized by imagination, innovation, divergent thinking and risk taking.

...communicate effectively with others in both the personal and professional spheres of life. Clear communication of thoughts and ideas is critical for success in all aspects of life and requires the ability to read, write, speak, listen and interact in meaningful ways.

...function effectively as a member of a team. There is a growing need for individuals with the teamwork and leadership skills necessary to work effectively with others in both the private and public spheres.

...make informed decisions in the use and management of financial resources. The knowledge and ability to effectively manage financial resources is important for personal and professional success.

Personal and Social Responsibility

Anchored through active involvement with diverse communities and real-world challenges

Graduates of Ferris State University should understand the value of:

...participating in the civic life of their communities. Whether it involves volunteering for some personal or public concern, participating in the electoral process or some other form of civic engagement, there is a need for citizens who are willing and able to promote the quality of life in and beyond their community.

...inclusion, empathy and positive engagement in their interactions with diverse others. Human diversity is manifest in myriad ways including physical, intellectual, socioeconomic, ethnic, cultural, and sexual. From the local to global scale, successful citizens develop an attitude of respecting diversity in their interactions with others.

...considering issues through well established ethical and moral traditions. Each of us daily has to make ethical choices. Recognizing an ethical dilemma and applying ethical reasoning are essential elements of personal and professional development.

...continuing to learn for personal and professional growth. Developing interests throughout life and pursuing opportunities to learn about them are hallmarks of a university graduate.

...making informed lifestyle choices. Proper nutrition and healthy leisure and recreation activities provide an essential foundation for a life of wellness.

Integrative Learning

Demonstrated through the application of knowledge, skills, and responsibilities to new settings and complex problems

Graduates of Ferris State University should be able to:

...integrate and apply what they have learned inside and outside of the classroom. Real-world problems most often require solutions that transcend academic boundaries, connecting theory and practice across multiple disciplines. The ability to adapt and apply knowledge and skills from multiple areas to creatively address new and challenging situations is necessary for success in a rapidly changing and increasingly connected world.

In summary, the FSU campus-wide student learning outcomes as proposed in this final (4/5/11) draft are:

Knowledge of Human Cultures and the Natural World

Focused by engagement with big questions, both contemporary and enduring

Graduates of Ferris State University should know:

... how all cultures, past or present, are fundamentally similar to each other, and why it is important to understand cultural differences.

...how their lives are shaped by the society and place in which they live.

... how scientists come to an understanding of the natural world and why a scientific understanding of the natural world is important.

...how technology shapes their world.

Intellectual and Practical Skills

Practiced extensively, across the curriculum, in the context of progressively more challenging problems, projects, and standards for performance

Graduates of Ferris State University should be able to:

...identify, access, and use information effectively.

...critically evaluate information using appropriate reasoning skills.

...interpret and use quantitative information together with the qualitative to understand and effectively solve real-life problems.

...think and act creatively in problem solving.

...communicate effectively with others in both the personal and professional spheres of life.

...function effectively as a member of a team.

...make informed decisions in the use and management of financial resources.

Personal and Social Responsibility

Anchored through active involvement with diverse communities and real-world challenges

Graduates of Ferris State University should understand the value of:

...participating in the civic life of their communities.

...inclusion, empathy and positive engagement in their interactions with diverse others.

...considering issues through well established ethical and moral traditions.

...continuing to learn for personal and professional growth.

...making informed lifestyle choices.

Integrative Learning

Demonstrated through the application of knowledge, skills, and responsibilities to new settings and complex problems

Graduates of Ferris State University should be able to:

...integrate and apply what they have learned inside and outside of the classroom.

MEMORANDUM

DATE: 1 March 2011
TO: Academic Senate
FROM: Academic Program Review Council
SUBJECT: Recommendations for Business Core
CC: Matt Pinter, David Nicol, Doug Haneline, Donald Flickinger, Roberta Teahen, Fritz Erickson

I. IDENTITY OF PROGRAM:

Business Core

II. RECOMMENDATION OF ACADEMIC PROGRAM REVIEW COUNCIL:

Continue the Program: The program's status with respect to the categories in Section 5 of the report merits continuation. Minor modifications may be needed.

III. RATING BASED ON CRITERIA:

- Relationship to FSU Mission: The program aligns to the FSU mission by providing a career education and opportunities for lifelong learning for FSU students.
- Program Visibility and Distinctiveness: The Business Core is a pivotal component of accreditation for the College of Business.
- Program Value: The Business Core provides students a standard exposure to business concepts and practices that will serve them throughout their career.
- Program Enrollment: The Business Core serves all students within the COB.
- Characteristics, Quality, and Employability of Students: Graduates of the program find employment in Michigan and throughout the United States.
- Quality of Curriculum and Instruction: Curriculum and instruction are of high quality.
- Composition and Quality of Faculty: The faculty are well qualified.

IV. APRC NOTES THE FOLLOWING STRENGTHS OF THE PROGRAM:

- The Business Core aligns with national accreditation standards.
- The Business Core provides students a standard exposure to business concepts and practices that will serve them throughout their career.
- The capstone course within the Business Core offers students a 'real world' hands on experience.

V. APRC OFFERS THE FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS FOR PROGRAM IMPROVEMENT:

- The Business Core should to continue to solidify the logistics of implementing the proposed upper level seminar course.
- The Business Core should continue to explore methods for consistent implementation regarding the sequence of courses.

MEMORANDUM

DATE: 1 March 2011
TO: Academic Senate
FROM: Academic Program Review Council
SUBJECT: Recommendations for A.A.S. and B.S. in Graphic Design
CC: Jeff Ek, Mike Cooper, David Nicol, Doug Haneline, Donald Flickinger, Roberta Teahen, Fritz Erickson

I. IDENTITY OF PROGRAM:

A.A.S. and B.S. in Graphic Design

II. RECOMMENDATION OF ACADEMIC PROGRAM REVIEW COUNCIL:

Continue the Program: The program's status with respect to the categories in Section 5 of the report merits continuation. Minor modifications may be needed.

III. RATING BASED ON CRITERIA:

- Relationship to FSU Mission: The program aligns to the FSU mission by providing a career education and opportunities for lifelong learning for FSU students.
- Program Visibility and Distinctiveness: The Graphic Design program is the only one in the country housed within a College of Business.
- Program Value: Due in part to their location within the COB, the Graphic Design program has high enrollment demand as well as a high employment rate post graduation.
- Program Enrollment: In Fall 2009 the GRDE program had 209 students enrolled.
- Characteristics, Quality, and Employability of Students: Graduates of the program find employment in Michigan and throughout the United States.
- Quality of Curriculum and Instruction: Curriculum and instruction are of high quality.
- Composition and Quality of Faculty: The faculty are well qualified.

IV. APRC NOTES THE FOLLOWING STRENGTHS OF THE PROGRAM:

- The program is the only one in the country housed within a COB.
- Graduates have a growing job outlook in a variety of settings.
- The program enrolls a solid gender mix.

V. APRC OFFERS THE FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS FOR PROGRAM IMPROVEMENT:

- The GRDE program should seek to improve the tracking of students transitioning out of the program after completion of the A.A.S. degree.
- The GRDE program should seek to develop an advisory board specific to the program.
- The GRDE program should explore ways to improve student writing across the curriculum.

MEMORANDUM

DATE: 1 March 2011
TO: Academic Senate
FROM: Academic Program Review Council
SUBJECT: Recommendations for B.S. in Technical and Professional Communication and B.S. in Journalism and Technical Writing
CC: Sandy Balkema, Nate Garrelts, Reinhold Hill, Doug Haneline, Donald Flickinger, Roberta Teahen, Fritz Erickson

I. IDENTITY OF PROGRAM:

B.S. in Technical and Professional Communication and B.S. in Journalism and Technical Writing

II. RECOMMENDATION OF ACADEMIC PROGRAM REVIEW COUNCIL:

Continue the Program: The program's status with respect to the categories in Section 5 of the report merits continuation. Minor modifications may be needed.

III. RATING BASED ON CRITERIA:

- Relationship to FSU Mission: The program aligns to the FSU mission by providing a career education and opportunities for lifelong learning for FSU students.
- Program Visibility and Distinctiveness: Technical writing is a field that will continue to grow with advancements in technology. Graduates are entering a career field consistently ranked as one of the best jobs in America.
- Program Value: In addition to serving the needs of students through two B.S. programs, two minors, and two certificates, the program contributes much to the university in the form of technical writing, editing and training.
- Program Enrollment: In Fall 2010, the TPC program had 23 students enrolled.
- Characteristics, Quality, and Employability of Students: Graduates of the program find employment in Michigan and throughout the United States.
- Quality of Curriculum and Instruction: Curriculum and instruction are of high quality.
- Composition and Quality of Faculty: The faculty are well qualified.

IV. APRC NOTES THE FOLLOWING STRENGTHS OF THE PROGRAM:

- The program is offered at relatively low cost to the university.
- Graduates have a growing job outlook in a variety of settings.
- The program offers a low faculty to student ratio, allowing for greater hands-on learning.

V. APRC OFFERS THE FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS FOR PROGRAM IMPROVEMENT:

- The TPC program should clarify to students that the goal of computer education within the program is to teach students how to understand the use of software as a tool, rather than to teach them detailed knowledge regarding specific software.

Motion made at April 5, 2011 meeting

I move that best practices be followed by all Academic Senate committees.

I move that the Institutional Strategic Planning Council, International Education Committee, and Senate Diversity Committee be restructured by the VP of the Academic Senate in concert with the 2011 – 2012 committee members. A report should be presented at the regular November 2011 Senate meeting.

Report to Academic Senate March 1, 2011

- A. Process
- B. Observations
- C. Best practices
- D. Scored rubric
- E. Recommendations

The “Senate Committee Review Task Force was formed to review the charters, purposes and alignment with University goals of existing Senate committees and to make recommendations for increasing committee efficiency and effectiveness to the Senate at the March 2011 meeting.” (Academic Senate Meeting Minutes September 7, 2010)

Senate Committee Review Task Force Members

Co-chairs: Maureen Heaphy and Marilyn Skrocki

Members: David Marion COB, George Nagel AS, Roger Daugherty AHS, Michelle Johnson AA

Ex-Officio: Matt Pinter COB

A. Process

1. Develop rubric completed by 10/13/2010
2. Send rubric to comm. Chairs and cc to all faculty by 10/19
3. Obtain information from the web site as available and begin completing rubric by 11/1
4. Task Force members send partially completed rubric to Maureen and Marilyn (M&M). 11/1
5. M&M send partially completed rubric to comm. Chairs by 11/ 5
6. Meet with chair and/or full committee 11/15 – 1/19
7. Review findings with Mike Berghoef by 1/ 28
8. Interview additional people as identified by Mike 2/1 – 2/15
9. Score committees using rubric 2/16 – 2/21
10. Provide information to Senate in preparation for March 1 meeting

B. Observations regarding scored rubric

Half or more than half of the committees have *

- (2) Agendas (one committee develops it during the meeting)
- (3) Minutes posted on the Academic Affairs web site.
- (4) Reviewed Mission or Vision in last AY and is posted on Academic Affairs website
- (7) Unique Mission of committee and not duplicated in other areas of the university
(Interpretation of this warrants further discussion.)
- (8) Specific outcomes or deliverables attributed to this committee in the previous AY
- (12) Made improvements based on past activities.

- (6) Seven or fewer meetings (This criterion may not be as important as initially thought. Many committees get work done through e-mails and not meetings)
- (1) Unfilled positions or positions filled by someone outside of the designated college.
- (5) Not reviewed Charge or Charter (or is not documented)
- (9) Not filed End of Year Report every year (last 3 years)
- (10) No specific objectives or measurable goals developed by the committee
- (11) Chair but no secretary defined
- (13) No road map identified to steer committee

*Number in parenthesis corresponds to the number on the rubric

C. Best practices

1. Committee composition and appointment of positions
All seats on committee should be filled with representatives from appropriate units where applicable, with both a secretary and a chair assigned.

2. Agenda and Minutes

An agenda is developed and shared in advance of the meeting and all minutes from meetings posted on the Academic Affairs website for faculty and community members to view.

3. Mission/Vision/Charge or Charter

Each committee has reviewed its mission, vision, charge or charter annually and have it posted on the Academic Affairs website.

4. Strategic Plan with outcomes identified

Each committee has its objectives and core values identified in a strategic plan, with specific outcomes identified and archived for continuity and historical purposes into an annual report.

E. Recommendations

Ideally when a university committee and an academic senate committee both exist there should be linkages as shown in Structure A which used the curriculum committees as an example. This allows for alignment of efforts.

Example of Structure "A"

Desired Structure

2.5.2011

When a university and a senate committee exist but are not linked, as depicted in Structure B below, the Task Force feels there is a greater opportunity for inefficiencies and ineffectiveness.

Example of Structure B

Current Structure for Some Committees

There may or may not be related college activities to the university activity

2.5.2011

The Task Force feels there are three senate committees that are similar to Structure B either with or without college level activities. Recommendations by the Vice President of the Senate Executive Committee, Michael Berghoef, are to consider an alignment that would ensure communication between the Senate Committee and the Administrative Contact. The three committees, with suggested Administrative contacts are:

Institutional Strategic Planning Council; Michael Cron and Donald Flickinger
International Education Committee; Robbie Teahen
Senate Diversity Committee; David Pilgrim and Andy Karafa

The Task Force recommends

- 1) Best practices be followed by all committees
- 2) Three committees be considered for restructuring to resemble Structure A.

1. Proposal Summary

What is the proposal about? (Description): This Leadership and Project Management Minor proposal integrates multiple disciplinary topics to form an effective project management and modern leadership curriculum. Students will gain the skills necessary for real world continuous improvement management. Undergraduates of this curriculum will learn how to create customer value and continuous improvement through development of cost-effective, creative solutions in complex work environments. Concurrently, students will be educated on how to effectively mitigate risk. Lessons will focus on increasing student's conceptual understanding of the subjects by applying a practical, action learning approach.

This Minor curriculum proposal clearly aligns with Ferris State University's goal of stimulating student centered learning environments by applying classroom theory to practical learning. The program combines the Leadership and Project Management fields to prepare graduates in business and other disciplines. The proposal uses existing courses of PROJ 320 Project Management Fundamentals, PROJ 350 Project Schedule, Cost and Risk Management, and PROJ 420 Managing the Procurement Process and Preparing for Certification, MGMT 305 Supervision and Leadership, MGMT 350 Tools for Decision Making. A newly developed course MGMT 492 Lean Service Enterprise Leadership will be integrated.

This proposed minor will handily meet the Project Management Institute's (PMI) Global Accreditation Center (GAC) requirements for accreditation. Obtaining accreditation is a viable short term goal. The PMI GAC accreditation is currently being sought by the ISM faculty. The Leadership and Project Management minor will be added to the PMI GAC after the accreditation is effective for two years in the ISM program. The PMI GAC has a seven year accreditation cycle. There is no cost associated with it.

Necessity of minor:

Why is the minor needed? Leadership is an essential skill in today's business world. Potential employers are actively seeking candidates with demonstrated leadership skills and the knowledge of how to use an array of resources to obtain the best performance from others. Project Management is one of the fastest growing and largest job classifications in both Information Technology and Management fields according to CNNMoney.com. The IBM Center for Global Studies has consistently emphasized that leadership and the ability to manage change are highly desirable job qualifications. However, IBM has also identified systems-level thinking & planning, collaboration, swift adaptation and effective communication as key educational areas that need to be strengthened. This Minor would vault Ferris graduates into position at the forefront of modern managerial education.

How will the courses address the need: One solution is to require systems-level thinking and planning within the curriculum. MGMT 492 will be a course that focuses on this area. Here students will learn how to design, improve, and lead a lean service business process initiative. Critical thinking and applying the appropriate problem solving skills are also requisite techniques in management. The MGMT 305, MGMT 350, MGMT 492, PROJ 450 courses will address applying collaboration, strategic thinking, problem solving skills and evaluating the best practices to ensure the organization is effectively and efficiently achieving its objectives.

Designing operations for speed and flexibility is a technique that would assist forward-looking organizations. Possessing operational dexterity will provide most organizations the ability to respond to any event that comes their way. The MGMT 350, MGMT 492, PROJ 320, PROJ 350 and PROJ 420 will address how to effectively adjust when an unforeseen situation arises in an organization or on a project. Additionally, clearly communicating organizational priorities, finding ways to eliminate bureaucracy, implementing appropriate processes, integrating functions for empowered teams, and enabling faster decisions will be addressed. All courses included in this proposed Minor will focus on effective communication.

How will the course be designed? A combination of lecture, case studies, video clips, experiential exercises, self-assessment techniques, and peer feedback will be used in the courses. Graduates will be able to differentiate themselves in a market of skilled professionals.

Where will the course be delivered? The course format and content presents an opportunity for the courses to be taught in a web-enhanced or fully online format.

When will the minor be offered? The College of Business has existing faculty to teach the courses included in the minor. New or adjunct faculty are not required. The Project Management courses will be taught by faculty who are PMP certified. The leadership and project management faculty are prepared to deliver the courses in Fall 2011. See suggested course offering plan on page seven.

OUTCOMES STATEMENT AND ASSESSMENT PLAN

Minor Outcomes and Assessment Plan:

The minor will be accredited through the Project Management Institute's Global Accreditation Center. In addition, the following areas will be included for outcomes assessment at the university level.

Assessment of Leadership and Project Management Outcomes

Learning Outcome #	Minor Outcome	Assessment
1	Demonstrate the characteristics, qualities and skill sets required for effective leadership and management. Exhibit the ability to think strategically and respond appropriately when implementing organizational change and /or unexpected situations. Apply creativity, innovative, problem solving and collaboration skills to ensure that objectives are efficiently, effectively and ethically achieved.	Case Analysis, Presentations, Community Service Projects, Individual Development Assignments and Exercises, Peer evaluation
2	Develop skills in metric-based management to enhance planning activities, to effectively assess situations, to perform reliable analysis, to detect and hedge risk, to comparatively benchmark performance, to provide a foundation for continuous improvement, and to improve understanding and dialogue across a firm's Operations, Marketing and Finance functions.	Tests, Quizzes, Projects and Exercises
3	Evaluate, design, improve, and lead a lean service business process initiative using Systems Planning and Thinking (seeing the whole business as a value stream), Human relations skills (leadership, strategy development and deployment, change management, and team problem solving) and Lean Principles (kaizen, PDCA, 5S, pull, leveling process stability, standardized work, root-cause problem resolution and A3 Reporting).	Individual Exercises/Assignments, Team Based projects, Peer evaluation
4	Examine project management knowledge areas and apply knowledge in preparation of project documents and deliverables. Apply Project Management Institute (PMI) Code of Ethics and Professional responsibility to various situations.	Tests, Projects, Case Analysis, Assignments, and Exercises
5	Evaluate various project management techniques used to build project schedules including time estimation, PERT, critical path, critical chain, and the use of float and buffers. Examine cost estimating techniques, project budget preparation and review risk management tools and techniques including risk identification, quantitative and qualitative risk assessment, and risk mitigation strategies.	Tests, Projects, Case Analysis, Assignments, and Exercises
6	Examine best practices, tools and techniques to manage procurement through its entire process from Bid Document Preparation to Contract Closure. Apply Project Management Body of Knowledge to prepare for PMP and CMP certification.	Tests, Projects, Case Analysis, Assignments, and Exercises

CURRICULUM CONSULTATION FORM

To be completed by each department affected by the proposed change, new degree, new program, new minor, or new course. Potential duplication of coursework is reason for consultation.

1. This completed form must be forwarded with the proposal to the chair/head of the department to be consulted.
2. The department must respond within 20 calendar days of receipt of this form to insure inclusion in the final proposal. The completed form is returned to the initiator and inserted into the proposal.

Failure to respond is interpreted as support for the proposal.

3. The Proposing Department must address any concerns raised by the department. This response will be in writing and be included in the proposal following the consultation form.

INTERNET COURSE LISTINGS
Effective July 1, 2011

Three types of courses that utilize the Internet have been identified by Ferris State University: Web-Enhanced, Blended, and Fully Online. Instructors proposing to offer either Blended or Fully Online sections must have these courses approved in advance. The approval should involve the first level of administration above the instructor (for example, a Department Head or a Director, hereinafter referred to as the Department Representative), and/or the Dean of the College and/or his/her designee. Approval is done electronically. The Approval form should originate from the instructor, go to the Department Representative/Designee/Dean for approval, and then be forwarded to the Dean's Office. The Dean's Office will forward each form to the FerrisOnline Office. Courses that have not been submitted for approval will not be listed in the schedule of courses offered by Ferris State University. Courses that are not approved will not be listed in the schedule of courses offered by Ferris State University

To protect both the University and the faculty member from unnecessary liability, only those Blended and Fully Online courses that are conducted through the University's course management system (currently called FerrisConnect) will be listed in the Ferris schedule of courses. Faculty may offer students additional resources, like wikis, YouTube, Skype, etc., as long as these resources are linked through FerrisConnect and the students are advised to access such products through the University's course management system. Any exceptions, such as courses offered directly through another site, must be approved in writing by the Dean of the College. The E-learning administrator will provide a report before the first week of classes each semester indicating the Fully Online or Blended courses listed in the schedule that do not have an accompanying FerrisConnect link established.

E-mail correspondence with students should be conducted through the FerrisConnect platform. At times when FerrisConnect is temporarily unavailable, faculty are encouraged to use Ferris e-mail to communicate with students, rather than personal e-mail accounts.

Different procedures apply to the approval process for Blended and Fully Online courses. Further elaboration on the characteristics of each type of Internet-reliant course and the current procedures may be found on the accompanying Procedures for Listing Internet Courses as well as on the Academic Affairs website, where the latest policy and procedures will be available.

PROCEDURES FOR LISTING INTERNET COURSES

To clarify what distinguishes each of the three types of Internet-related courses identified by Ferris, characteristics of each are provided below.

Web-enhanced:

- Features typically include administrative uses of web materials such as posting of course syllabus, listing of schedule, course and instructor information, and posting of grades.
- Provides additional, but not exclusive, point of reference for pages of course content, links to websites, study guides, self-assessment activities, etc.
- Communication tools may be provided to facilitate contact with instructor and fellow learners.
- Participation in the web course space may or may not be required in order to meet course outcomes.

Blended (formerly referred to as Hybrid or Mixed Delivery):

- Access to and participation in the web course activities is required; a learner cannot be a productive member of the class and meet course objectives without regular web access.
- Face-to-face meetings are retained, but are scheduled with reduced frequency than the class would meet in a fully face-to-face section.
- Much of the course content, student learning, and other aspects of the course are facilitated through peer-to-peer, group, and instructor-to-student discussion, collaboration, and presentation.

Fully Online:

- Face-to-face meetings no longer occur.
- All student-to-student, student-to-instructor, and student-to-content interaction takes place via the web course tools.

Course Listing Procedures

Procedures to be followed for listing each of these Internet course type options on the Ferris Schedule of Classes follow:

Fully Online

Because of the integrated nature of Ferris State University's enrollment, financial, and administrative software (currently, Banner) and its course management systems (currently WebCT/Blackboard and branded FerrisConnect), all fully online courses must be offered through FerrisConnect. This requirement is designed to maximize efficiency, enhance accountability, and avoid unnecessary liability for faculty members and the University.

No course with a V designation will be listed in the Ferris course schedule unless a corollary course has been established and is utilized within the University's course management system. The E-learning administrator is responsible for assuring that FerrisConnect courses are listed for all sections in the schedule with a V prefix at the start of each semester.

The form to be used for a Fully Online course request is included within this procedures document and will be available on the Academic Affairs website. The form must be submitted electronically, and all approvals and comments will also be processed electronically. A form is needed only once for each course/instructor pairing. This policy will take effect for courses to be offered after July 1, 2011.

Deans may delegate the responsibility for the review and approval process to a Department Representative and/or another Administrator within the College.

Blended:

All Blended classes must also be approved in advance by the Department Representative and/or the Dean of the College and/or his/her designee. Blended courses only refer to those where there is a reduction in the class meeting times. Requests to offer Blended courses should be submitted ahead of the due date for the schedule for the semester in which the course is to be offered. The online parts of Blended courses must be offered through FerrisConnect.

When requesting a Blended course, faculty members should supply the Department Representative with a rationale for offering the course as Blended, the specific dates that the class will meet for the semester, and how the course components (such as exams, activities, content, etc.) will be incorporated into the face-to-face and online portions of the course. A sample of the form to be used for this request is included in this procedures document and can be accessed on the Academic Affairs website. This form should be submitted through the approval processes electronically. This section of the policy will take effect for Summer 2011.

Because the specific schedule for face-to-face meetings will change from semester to semester and a variety of other systems are impacted, such as scheduling of classrooms and information about availability of instructors, Blended courses must be submitted for review and approval each semester. Much of the information will likely apply from semester to semester so that the initial request may simply be updated each semester with the new calendar. Once Blended course dates are established and published, they should not be changed without written approval from the Provost's Office.

Deans may delegate the responsibility for the review and approval process to a Department Representative and/or another Administrator within the College.

Web-Enhanced:

No special procedures apply to web-enhanced courses since, by definition, these courses are scheduled to meet for all of the planned face-to-face sessions.
