STATEMENT OF AIMS

MHSLA has become a viable spokesman for health sciences libraries in Michigan. I would work to continue and to increase the effectiveness of that voice.

MHSLA is comprised of people from many types of health sciences libraries- hospital, academic and corporate. Often I think we tend to lose sight of the heterogeneity of the Association. I hope with my experiences as an academic librarian and also as a librarian in a clinical setting, I can help meld the various interests and needs of our group.

The education conference remains a strong point of MHSLA. Hopefully we can continue to bring a mix of workshops and seminars that will be of interest to all of our members. It becomes especially important to have good offerings and MLA CE courses available in the state during these times of economic hardships.

STATEMENT OF AIMS

The Michigan Health Sciences Libraries Association was formed by a group of librarians who shared common interests and common needs. The State Group Planning Committee, in making its recommendations to the proposed membership, identified several objectives to be met by the state group. These objectives included "the promotion of study groups or task forces to identify and formulate solutions to common problems", and "the sponsorship of shared services and the exchange of services on a statewide level." These objectives continue to be of significance today in the year of the "information society."

My aims, as president-elect of Michigan Health Sciences Libraries Association, will be to provide the membership of the organization with the opportunities to work together to meet the challenges of today: High technology, resource sharing, proposed copyright revisions, user fees, quality service and budget restraints. Libraries need to be vital components of information exchange. If we do not meet the challenges, or provide the needed information services to our patrons now, we may not have that opportunity in the future.

I believe I can provide the leadership our association will need to meet the challenges.
